Partnerships for Higher Education Access & Success

April 13, 2010
at the UVM Davis Center, Burlington VT
12:30- 4:30 pm

Issues of access to and success in higher education, especially for disadvantaged and low-income youth, are considered among the most critical and challenging issues. In this institute, members of a Faculty Leaders for Access and Success initiative sponsored by MA and RI Campus Compact will share best practices that connect campus civic engagement curricular and co-curricular efforts to issues of access and success.

What K-16 outreach programs do and don't work? What are some service-learning/civic engagement curricular approaches that successfully integrate K-16 partnerships aimed at access and success? How do we develop college student voice and leadership within our programs? How do middle and high school partners think about these questions? This institute will engage participants in answering these questions, and enable them to spend time developing and/or improving their own access/success programs, as well as create support for such programs on their campuses.

Facilitators: Rick Battistoni, Professor and Chair, Political Science, Providence College; John Reiff, Director, Office of Community Service-Learning, UMass Amherst and other Faculty Leaders. Sponsored by Rhode Island Campus Compact.
